PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE
ANNUAL REPORT
Peter Allen
Rhode Island College

Paid membership in the SAE fluctuated within 25 members on either side of 550 during this year. This is consistent with numbers for past years which have rarely exceeded 600 and generally hovered around 550. We have looked into affiliation with a European association of anthropologists concerned with Europe, but concluded that it is not feasible at this time although some of our members belong to both societies.

Financially, the SAE is strong. Our fund balance has been between $20,000 and $25,000 all year and, although end-of-the-year expenditures will draw that down a bit, it should be over $15,000 (Con't pg 3 Allen)

GREETINGS FROM RINDGE
Kelli Ann Costa
Franklin Pierce College

Hello all from the snowy reaches of southwestern New Hampshire. This is an exciting time for SAE members. We are back to work after our too short winter breaks, we are beginning to think about AAA 2000 in San Francisco, and many of us are in the midst of writing and research. The new millennium promises to be a busy one.

As many of you are aware, the Bulletin is changing as the year progresses. The SAE Board has decided that the Bulletin's service as a source of Society information can be more easily and promptly served by H-SAE, under the very capable hands of Tony Galt. The Bulletin will evolve (Con't pg 2 Costa)

Society for the Anthropology of Europe

The Society for the Anthropology of Europe (SAE) was founded at the 1986 Annual Meeting of the American Anthropological Society in Philadelphia, PA. Membership is open to all members of the AAA who work or are interested in Europe as an area concentration.

The Bulletin is the newsletter of the SAE and is published three times a year in February, May and October.

Deadlines for materials to be submitted are as follows:

Winter	January 1
Spring	April 1
Fall	September 1

Allow two to four weeks delivery time. If you don't receive your Bulletin, please contact the American Anthropological Association.

Individuals who are not anthropologists or are not based in North America may subscribe to the Bulletin without joining the SEA/AAA by sending $15 annual subscription fee to AAA, 4350 N Fairfax Dr., Suite 640, Arlington, VA 22203

All Bulletin submissions except those handled by section editors should be sent to:

Kelli Ann Costa
Department of Anthropology
Franklin Pierce College
Rindge, NH 03461
(603)899-4207
fax: (603)899-4324

SAE Membership Report

SAE membership as of January 1, 2000 is 576 with 368 regular members, 208 students and 7 subscribers. Lapsed total 24 members and 33 students.

over the course of the next ten months into a small journal. Ideally, the new publication will encompass short scholarly articles, book and film reviews, and more substantive issue oriented pieces than the Bulletin is currently able to carry. The new publication will come out twice per year, and will be included as part of your SAE membership. It will also be a peer reviewed journal.

As of this writing the name of the new publication has not been decided. I am soliciting names and contributions for the first issue (I'm targeting November 2000) from SAE members, as well as nominations for members who would like to sit on the editorial board. The SAE Board and I are in the process of determining editorial and publication policy, and those guidelines will be included in the final issue of the Bulletin in May, as well as on H-SAE.

In this issue of the Bulletin I would like to turn your attention to the President's Message from Peter Allen (Rhode Island C) beginning on page 1, Eva Huseby-Darvas' (U Michigan) contribution on AAA 2000 beginning on page 3, and the 1999 session report by Winnie Lem (Trent U) beginning on page 5. All of these contributions are testament to our highly successful and professionally active society.

Also included are new student paper competition guidelines, slide set announcements, calls for submissions, and the FYI and calendar sections.

All my best;

entering the year 2000.

Three new officers were elected in 1999 and include the following:

- 1) Program Chair-Elect: David Beriss (U New Orleans)
- 2) Member-at-Large: Matti Bunzl (U Illinois-Urbana-Champaign)
- 3) Graduate Student Representative: Brian Palmer (Harvard U)

In addition, Pat Heck (U of the South) stepped down as editor of the SAE Bulletin and was replaced by Kelli Ann Costa (Franklin Pierce C).

Peter Allen, current President of SAE, was re-elected Convener of the Section Assembly at the AAA Leadership Retreat and Section Assembly in May 1999.

At the annual meeting in Chicago (November, 1999), the SAE had a very high profile. The SAE organized two invited sessions, reviewed another 10 (of which two were cosponsored with the Society for Visual Anthropology), and organized one poster session for a total of thirteen sessions. In addition, the SAE sponsored five roundtable luncheon meetings to which approximately 35 individuals subscribed. One of the highlights of the meeting was our annual distinguished lecture, this year delivered by Scott Lash and titled "Critique of Information." It was followed by a reception for attendees and SAE members.

Both the meeting of the Executive Board of the SAE and the business meeting were well attended and substantial amounts of business were conducted. Finally, the SAE provided venues for meetings of four subgroups with European foci: The Anthropology of German Studies, The East European Anthropology Group, Network for the Anthropology of French and Francophone Cultures, and the Hungarianist Research Group.

In the area of publications, the SAE has announced a plan to modify, over time, the Bulletin by incorporating more of the materials normally published there on the Society's website and electronic internet list. The new Bulletin will begin publishing longer reviews and some short articles and will come out less frequently—two times a year. Initial plans are to publish selected papers from annual AAA and regional meetings.

The SAE is particularly pleased to announce the publication of "Films for Teaching the Anthropology of Europe," a project that was more than a decade in the making. Compiled and edited by Mary Nolan, this is a compendium of more than 400 films and tapes of interest to Europeanists and includes all the relevant distribution information as well as short descriptive annotations on all productions. It was published by the AAA and is available from the central office. There are plans to make it available electronically in the near future and to continually update it as new productions become available.

The SAE electronic list and website are among the best offered by AAA sections and under the able direction of Anthony Galt (U Wisconsin, Green Bay), both have flourished and continue to grow. Almost 800 individuals now subscribe to the H-SAE list.

The SAE continues to sell syllabi and slide sets to accompany selected ethnographies.

The SAE sponsors two annual competitions, a pre-dissertation fellowship and a student paper prize. This year the pre-dissertation fellowship was awarded to Stephen Hibbard (U Chicago) for linguistic research in Poland. The student paper prize was won by Jeffrey Feldman (U Virginia). The pre-dissertation competition will be continued this year in cooperation with the Council on European Studies at Columbia U and the amount of the award will be increased from $3000 to $4000. Plans are underway to alter the guidelines of the student paper competition and expand the number of prizes given to include both undergraduate and graduate students.

AAA 2000 Program Notes

Eva Huseby-Darvas
U Michigan

Dear Colleagues,

This is a preliminary note regarding the program for the 2000 AAA Meetings. I will be sending out more information after I receive the final brochures from the Program Committee of the Association at the end of January, or beginning of February.

(Con't pg 4 Huseby-Darvas)

As I am sure you all know, the January 2000 AAA newsletter will have the submission and other forms for this year's gathering in San Francisco. At this time, I am encouraging you to start seriously thinking about and actively organizing sessions and/or giving papers. Please follow all directions very closely on the forms and mail everything directly to the AAA Program Committee in Arlington by the 1st of April.

Regarding "Invited Status": For invited sessions we, the members of the Society for the Anthropology of Europe, get either one double session (consisting of one 3 1/2 hour time period), or two single sessions (each consisting of one 1 hour and 45 minute time period). We also are given space for one invited poster session, something which has been underutilized in the past. Some of you were thinking of asking for invited session status. In these cases, please send me--as soon as possible--the final draft of the title and abstract of the session, as well as the titles and abstracts of all the papers presented in the session. In order to send all material to this year's SAE Program Committee members for review, I will need to have the material proposed for invited sessions no later than the 10th of March. The best way to do this is to send the proposals either via email (evdarvas@umich.edu), or fax 734/769-7889. If you need to talk with me, please telephone me at 734/769-7698, and if I am not there I will return your call as soon as possible.

During the special meeting of the AAA Program Committee for Section Editors/Program Chairs in Chicago last November, Louise Lamphere, Lucille Horn, Helena Ragone, and Jan Meier emphasized that San Francisco is a very popular meeting place. Therefore, as a rule, there are many more applications, more submissions, ergo there is much more competition for sessions and papers. This means that the abstracts will have to be even better and more appropriate to the annual theme than they are when we meet elsewhere. Toward this end, I am enclosing here, verbatim, the guidelines/suggestions for this year's meeting:

"The Public Face of Anthropology in the Millennium"
Louise Lamphere, President and Helena Ragone, Program Chair

"Since its inception anthropology has long been concerned with and contributed greatly to our understanding of humanity. Building upon this tradition, the theme of the 2000 meeting, to be held in San Francisco, CA (15-19 November), is "The Public Face of Anthropology in the Millennium." We envision participants extending anthropology's contributions by focusing even greater attention on our discipline's ability to shed light on complex issues affecting people's lives both here in the US and abroad.

"One of the Association's long range goals is to ensure that national discussion of critical societal issues become informed by anthropological perspectives. Members are encouraged to showcase and explore the many ways our research touches upon issues of social, political and public concerns from the perspective of all four fields of anthropology, as well as, practicing anthropology. We are particularly interested in exploring social justice, health research and health policy, education, development, ecological movements and environmental degradation, globalization, science, technology and the information revolution, violence, conflict and peace, race/ethnicity, gender and class.

"The meeting's theme will also serve to highlight the many ways in which anthropological knowledge can be directed toward educating both public and private sectors and in disseminating critical information to policy makers, decision makers and opinion makers on a variety of issues. The advancement of anthropology will serve a multitude of purposes: to promote the discipline, to facilitate hiring of anthropologists in the private and public sectors, and to increase the use of anthropological systems of knowledge, methodology and skills, thereby increasing public awareness of the uses and efficacy of anthropological knowledge.

Participants are actively encouraged to recast their work by exploring innovative and creative linkages, implications and applications. We encourage you to submit proposals and papers that forge bridges between subjects and subfields moving us beyond traditionally conceived categories. For example, an archaeology paper on slave plantations would typically be conceived for an archaeology panel with a focus on race, but we would like to see such a paper enrich panels that address issues of health, violence, social justice, political economy, and so forth. We should also like to see, for example, a cultural and/or linguistic paper that explores the effects of war or violence enhance a forensic panel and/or an archaeological panel on sites that depict violence. Applying the same approach topically also reveals the intersections of subjects and approaches. Panels that incorporate the 4 subfields (as well as practicing) in innovative ways that cross boundaries and that explore nuances of race/ethnicity, gender, and class are highly desirable.

"The 2000 meeting provides us with a forum to engage with one another and with the public in a collaborative and creative process. Aside from its obvious historic value, it is our hope that "The Public Face of Anthropology in the Millennium" will showcase our strengths and usher in a new era of growth and collegiality in anthropology."

1999 AAA Program Report

Winnic Lem
Trent University

At the 1999 Meetings in Chicago, the SAE sponsored a total of thirteen sessions thanks to the enthusiastic participation of its members. The titles of the sessions and their organizers were as follows:

Invited: The Making of Wealth and Poverty in a Europe of the Regions (Gavin Smith (U Toronto) and Susana Narotzky (U de Barcelona))

Invited: Why Post-Socialism is Good to Think: The Anthropology of Transforming States: Part I (Nancy Ries (Colgate) and Sascha Goluboff (Washington and Lee))

Other Sessions:

Why Post-Socialism is Good to Think: The Anthropology of Transforming States: Part II (Nancy Ries (Colgate) and Sascha Goluboff (Washington and Lee))

Class Counts: An Ethnographic Look at the Salience of Class in European Contexts (Diane O'Rourke (Victoria U-Wellington) and Deborah Chahalen (SUNY-Binghamton))

History and Politics of Desire: Nostalgic Futures Across the New Europe (Melissa Caldwell and Tracey Heatherington (Harvard))

Bodies in Motion, Identities in Place: Cultural Politics in the Portuguese Speaking World (Andrea Klimt (U Mass-Dartmouth) and Kimberly Holton (Wesleyan))

Visual Coherence: Local and Transformational Identities in Europe: Part II (Peter Allen (Rhode Island C) and Alison Jablonko)

Socialism's Other: Imagining the Normal in Eastern Europe and Cuba (Paul Ryer (U Chicago))

Maps, Mobility and Organisation: Time and Space in Northern Europe (SAE)

Rurality, Rationality and Ritual in the Balkans and Central Europe (SAE)

Population, Consumption and Belonging in Northern and Southern Europe (SAE)

Poster Session:

Envisioning Southern Europe (SAE)

Many participants in SAE sessions also travelled a great distance from both the northern reaches and southern reaches of Europe to attend the

Chicago meetings. Sessions were well attended and the papers delivered stimulated lively discussion and at times heated debates.

The 1999 SAE Distinguished Lecture was delivered by Dr. Scott Lash, the Director of the Center for Cultural Studies at Goldsmith's College, London. He gave his very energetic, erudite and stimulating talk to a large and largely mesmerised audience who besieged him with questions, comments and challenges after the talk and during the reception which followed.

Book Reviews

Miklos Voros-Review Editor
U Chicago

The Bulletin, since it became possible to publish review articles immediately on the H-SAE website and discussion list, has been missing one of its most important means of scholarly communication and community formation: the book reviews. With the transition to the new and more prestigious journal format, we intend to reverse this trend.

I have a number of books available for review, and many of them can be clustered thematically:

The Ljubljana Graduate School of the Humanities has recently published a series of ethnological and anthropological collections. The first book introduces the activities and proceedings of the Mediterranean Ethnological Summer School. The second volume, titled Urban Symbolism and Rituals, is a collection of urban anthropology case studies. The articles in the third piece analyze, as the title suggests, the Cultural Processes and Transformations in the Transition of the Central and Eastern European Post-Communist Countries. All three books contain both rich ethnographies and interesting theoretical contributions.

There are other, recently published books at our disposal that discuss the political and economic transformation in East and Central Europe, such as Kathryn Verdery's What Was Socialism and What Comes Next, William Dan Purdue's Modernization Crisis: The Transformation of Europe, and Perry L. Patterson's Capitalist Goals, Socialist Past. These complimentary review copies can certainly be coupled with other relevant books or reviewed individually.

Another group of books by Bergbahn analyzes the lives and roles of women in East and Central European societies, and another set of (next column) books explores the situation of ethnic and religious minorities in the former Soviet Union. If you are interested in writing a joint review, I will send you the specific titles.

And last but not least, Jeffrey Cole has announced the launching of a new reprint series in anthropological monographs: the Dowling College first published Donald S. Pitkin's book The House that Giacomo Built: History of an Italian Family, 1878-1978.

If you would like a complete list of the books thus far on hand, or would like to publish a book review (max. 1000 words) or review article (max. 5000 words) in the new journal due to be released in the fall of this year, please contact me at any of the following two email addresses: miklos@uchicago.edu or vmiklos@mail.mata.vu

SAE STUDENT PAPER GUIDELINES

In 2000, the Society for the Anthropology of Europe is holding its eighth annual student paper competition. Two categories will be accepted: graduate and undergraduate. The following rules apply:

1) Papers must deal with some aspect of European anthropology and/or European anthropology's contribution to the broader field. This rule will be interpreted liberally to include papers of a comparative and/or theoretical nature.

2) All submissions must follow the standard anthropological format for citations, endnotes, and "References Cites" as outlined in the American Anthropologist style guide.

3) All manuscripts must be wordprocessed or typed, double-spaced, with one-inch margins.

4) Maximum length for the body of the text is 10,000 words; the abstract, tables, notes, and references may constitute additional pages.

5) Authors should include a title and also an abstract of 100 words or less on the first page of the paper.

6) The author's name, mailing address, e-mail address, telephone number, university affiliation and academic status (graduate or undergraduate) should appear typed on a cover sheet separate from the manuscript. The author's name should not appear elsewhere on the manuscript.

7) Entries that do not conform to the above requirements will not be accepted.

8) Three hard copies of the manuscript and one cover sheet are to be submitted to the Chair of the Adjudication Committee by September 20, 2000. No late entries will be accepted. Entries may not be transmitted via fax or email attachment.

One prize of $150 will be given for the best undergraduate paper and two prizes of $350 each will be awarded to two of the best graduate papers. Abstracts of the winning entries will be published in the SAE Bulletin. All entries must be received by September 20, 2000 at the address listed below. Inquiries about submissions can also be directed to this address.
